

SMALLPOX CASE IS FOUND IN EAST END OF MAYSVILLE

John Clark Found Ill With Smallpox Is Taken to County Pest House and Steps Are Taken To Prevent Disease's Spread.

When John Clark, of East Second street, called on Dr. A. R. Quigley Monday afternoon after having felt badly for several days, that physician discovered a fully developed case of smallpox and immediately notified the Health Department.

Dr. Quigley and Dr. Reynolds, Health Officer, had the man at once moved to the county pest house and thoroughly fumigated the house in which Clark lived. Everyone living in other parts of the building was vaccinated and steps were taken to prevent the spread of the disease as much as possible.

The origin of the case cannot be traced as Clark had not been away from Maysville for some time except on the Steamer East St. Louis in its trip to Cincinnati Sunday. He could not have contracted the disease on that trip, however, for it was then developing.

Dr. Reynolds today advised everyone in Maysville to be vaccinated at once to look into their old vaccination. School children have been ordered to be vaccinated immediately and places and persons visited by Clark within the past few days have been carefully examined and the proper steps taken by the authorities.

MR. J. B. FURLONG WOULD BE COUNTY COMMISSIONER

Maysville Man and Prominent Farmer Hears Calls of Friends and Enters Race for Seat in Commission.

Mr. J. B. Furlong, of this city, a successful business man and an extensive farmer, has been urged by his many friends for the past two or three weeks to make the race for County Commissioner. In response to those calls, Mr. Furlong has finally consented to the use of his name in this race and in making his formal announcement for the office, makes this statement to the voters of the county:

For some time past a number of my friends have been urging me to make the race for County Commissioner from District No. 1, (city of Maysville) and during the last few days these requests have so increased in number, and become so insistent, that, after careful consideration of the duties involved, I have decided to announce for that office.

We are all only too well acquainted with the necessity for better roads, and a business-like administration of the county's affairs, and it is with those things in mind that I pledge myself, if elected, to the fair and impartial performance of the duties of my office. I have made no alliances with other candidates for Commissioner, and seek your support solely on my past record and present fitness.

NORMAL SCHOOL WILL OPEN JUNE 13 FOR FIVE WEEKS

County and City School Heads Now Endeavoring to List Teachers Who Will Take Special Course.

County Superintendent Turnpseed and City Superintendent Caplinger Tuesday issued this statement in regard to the Maysville Normal School: The following letter and a questionnaire are being mailed out to all the teachers of Maysville and Mason county preparatory to the organization of the Summer Normal:

According to the new laws of Kentucky, teachers must soon have the equivalent of a High School diploma and twenty weeks of professional training. These Summer Normals that are being established in many of the larger high schools of the state are being organized under the authority of the state department of education and the State Normals for the direct purpose of bringing those teachers now in the service to the above requirements.

We have agreed on the motto, "All of the teachers in Normal School this summer." Of course these teachers who are Normal graduates are not included in this list. The county and city boards of education have agreed to furnish free tuition to their teachers consequently the teachers who are not normal school graduates should have excellent reasons to offer these boards of Education and the public why they are not in summer school either in Maysville or some other normal.

We are expecting, from the inquiries already made, that there will be a large attendance.

Those interested should inquire G. H. TURNPSEED, Supt. Mason County Schools.

W. J. CAPLINGER, Supt. Maysville City Schools.

There will be a Summer Normal school held at the Maysville High School from June 13 to July 16.

Tuition is free to Mason county teachers, others $10. School runs five weeks, six days a week. You get credit for six weeks attendance and are privileged to take three major studies and one drill covering the same ground and given the same credit that is allowed for a term's work of ten weeks at the Normal.

All work will be done under the authority of the Eastern State Normal.

Should there be sufficient demand, classes will be offered in Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Arithmetic, English Composition, American and English Literature, American History and Civics, Sociology, Methods, School Management, Psychology, Physics, Chemistry, Botany, Agriculture, Latin, Physical Education, Penmanship and Visual Education.

That we may know the number of students and the character of work desired, we are asking you to fill out the enclosed form and return to W. J. Caplinger, Maysville, Ky., at your very earliest convenience.

W. J. CAPLINGER, Prin. GEORGE J. NOEL, Asst. G. E. EVERETT, Asst.

FORMER LOUISVILLE HEALTH OFFICER MAY COME HERE.

Dr. P. E. Blackerby, head of the County Health Work of Kentucky and Dr. J. S. Locke, Secretary of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association of the state, were here Monday. These gentlemen left the word that a successor to Dr. B. F. Reynolds as Mason County Health Officer will be named in the immediate future. It is understood that Dr. Whittenberg, former Health Officer of Jefferson county, may be Dr. Reynolds' successor here.

ELECTION OF CHIEF MAY BE RETURNED TO COUNCIL

Councilmen Agitate Return of Police Chief's Election to That Body—Office Now Filled by the People.

It became known today that several members of City Council are now agitating the election of Chief of Police by Council instead of by the vote of the people of the city at large. It is understood that an ordinance providing that the election of this officer be made in this manner, will be presented to Council at an early meeting.

It is necessary that Council adopt such an ordinance at last sixty days before an election to make it apply for that term and as the term of Chief of Police expires with this year, the matter is being discussed now by members of Council.

Should the ordinance be presented and passed the Chief of Police would be elected each year instead of every four years as at present. So far as is known, there is no desire on the part of the councilmen who are behind this movement to change the present system of electing any of the other city officers.

NOTICE AND WARNING

It is requested by this Board that all school children, employees in stores and factories and the public generally be at once successfully vaccinated or show evidence of a previous vaccination within the past five years.

During the present city administration Mr. Smith has served quite efficiently as Chairman of the important Ways and Means committee and by virtue of this chairmanship has been Vice Mayor of the city. He has proven himself most efficient in managing the city's financial affairs and through his official connection as chairman of the Ways and Means committee has become quite familiar with the affairs of the City Treasurer's office.

Mr. Smith is personally popular and is about as well known throughout the city as any other man and we predict that he will be a strong contender for this, one of the city's most important offices.

METHODIST MINISTER SUICIDES BY HANGING

Prominent Methodist Devine Takes His Own Life By Hanging to Tree at Howling Green.

Bowling Green, Ky., May 10. — The Rev. Frank M. Thomas, a widely known minister in the Methodist church, was found hanging dead on a tree near his home here Monday.

The body was found Monday afternoon by a boy in the woods. Life had been extinct only a short time.

Dr. Thomas was widely known in this section and the South. He had held pastorates in Louisville, Owensboro and Morganfield, and at the time of his death he was book editor of the Methodist church. His headquarters were in Atlanta, Ga., but he had done his work at his home here.

Dr. Thomas was 62 years old and during the past two years had been in poor health. A week ago he returned from Battle Creek, Mich., where he had spent some time in an effort to recuperate. When he returned he appeared somewhat improved.

Dr. Thomas is survived by his widow and three children — Thomas Thomas, Richard Thomas, and Elizabeth Thomas. Besides his brother, Captain R. F. Thomas, he is survived by another brother, T. W. Thomas, both children, Thomas and Richard Thomas, are lawyers of this city.

$20,000 DAMAGES ASKED OF FAIR CO. IN THREE SUITS

Persons Injured In Crash of Amphitheater at Germantown Fair Seek Damages of Fair Company In Suits Filed Today.

Attorneys Baxter Harrison, of Brooksville, and B. S. Grannis, of Flemingsburg, filed three suits in the Mason Circuit Court this afternoon asking damages in all for $20,000 for injuries sustained by D. W. Rees, wife and daughter when the amphitheater at the Germantown Fair grounds collapsed last summer.

Mr. Rees sets out in his petition that in falling a distance of some ten or twelve feet he suffered a severe injury to his right side, broke a rib and suffered an injury to his right knee. He charges carelessness on the part of the Fair Company and asks damages in the sum of $5,000 and costs.

Mrs. Nellie Rees, wife of D. W. Rees sets out in her petition that she suffered a severe laceration and injury to her foot, a crushing of the toes and a permanent injury to her right knee. She asks damages in the sum of $5,000 and costs.

Lella Rees, an infant by her next friend and father, D. W. Rees, sues for $10,000 damages and costs. She charges that in the collapse she suffered a laceration of the left leg, a dislocation of the left ankle and a broken bone. She alleges that she was confined for three months because of the injuries and compelled to receive hospital treatment.

Other suits growing out of the same accident have been brought against the fair company in the Bracken Circuit Court.

SUGGESTS TIME CHANGE OF C. & O. ACCOMMODATION.

Mayor Russell has received this note from Supt. Taylor of this division of the C. & O.:

"We are having complaints from several sources regarding trains 18 and 19, and as a medium it is suggested that we change the time of train 18 to leave Cincinnati one hour earlier which would put it at Maysville at 7:25 p. m. instead of 8:25 p. m. Are there any objections to this from the citizens at Maysville? I would appreciate an early response."

Mrs. H. N. Brooks and son, Harold, Jr., of Rocky Mount, N. C., are the guests of her mother, Mrs. Hattie Mathews, of the East End.

THE PROFESSIONAL ADVISER.

Mr. William Jett Lauck, who, to judge from the publicity he has achieved during the past, is 'agin' industry from railroading to the corner grocery store, declared in an address before the Women's Trade Union League recently that the "railroads are now attempting to take advantage of a temporary industrial depression to reduce wages and impair the standards of employees, and thus permanently add to railroad profits." One of the causes of the industrial depression is the condition of the railroads themselves. Another is the incessant socialistic propaganda being agitated by theorists of the ilk of Lauck, who never earned a dollar in his life in a strictly commercial way, to judge from the 400-word self-laudatory biographical sketch in "WHO'S WHO."

Another charge which has been lodged against the roads by the Plumb Planners and similar gentry is that they have deliberately mismanaged the properties and encouraged inefficiency in order to make out a case for reduced wages. In other words, that they have been planning a "fire sale" on twenty billion dollars worth of property in order to force a reduction of the payroll. Any American who would destroy his business in order to reduce wages of his employees would be incarcerated in an insane asylum instantaneously.

Everyone who has a lick of sense knows and has been a witness to the fact that the Plumb Planners are encouraging inefficiency, slacking, and obstinacy, if not worse, among the employees of the roads with a view to bankrupting the business and turning it over to the United States Government as a receiver, to operate permanently. If they could succeed in that design they would immediately compel the taxpayers to meet a payroll which would lay every Tom, Dick and Harry in the country under tribute, and through plunder and maladministration and political manipulation they would resolve the roads into rust streaks and rubbish piles.

It is fortunate that the more sensible of the railroad employees are awaking to the ridiculousness of such charges as are being hurled at the road owners. When the majority have learned to appreciate the fallacy of such assertion the Laucks and the Plumbs, now strutting across the stage with pens for pikestaffs, will pass off through the wings leaving naught but a mephitical odor trailing behind which the fundamental good sense of the American people will fumigate into an unpleasant memory.

MR. HARDING'S ENGLISH.

President Harding does not suit some high-brow British a-tall. It seems he does not use good English. Worse, his knowledge of the language is so deficient that he "is accustomed to take desperate ventures in the coinage of new words." So at least the London Daily Chronicle asserts, and attempts to prove its charge by alleging that "in his election addresses he invented the hideous 'normale'."

That is pretty serious, all must admit. For the effect of Mr. Harding's "invention" has been that this very expressive word has been welcomed by people who can recognize a good thing. The truth is, though, that President Harding did not coin it. It has been in the dictionary for years, not much used, it is true, but ready to serve as occasion might demand and it expressed precisely the idea which the Republican nominee wished to convey to the people. This, it is clear to most of us, is the only justification for any language. It is used to communicate thoughts. If a man cannot find among the terms commonly employed one that meets his requirements is he not justified in coining an appropriate word? There are an abundance of precedents for doing so. In fact the man who is brave enough or so "desperate" that he does fashion a new word to suit a necessity is a public benefactor.

The Chronicle says of the president's message to congress that it "contains several passages that would cause a shudder in academic circles." Well, those circles would be the better for being jarred, if they will not keep up with the developments of our language or are not familiar with approved usage of it. The critic complains that the critic describes America as "illy prepared for war's aftermath." But while "illy" is rarely used, the lexicographer declares that the adverb is "regularly formed from the adjective 'ill,'" so Mr. Harding did not err in employing it. But worst of all, "this message gives us 'hospitalization,' which the English speaking world might surely have done very well without." Yet that noun is "as old as the hills." Obviously Mr. Harding knows English better than his English critic.

But, however, egotistical "purists" may rage over the president's choice of words, he "put across" what he had to say and much of it is good for the British to read and understand.

OBSERVATIONS.

With some folks the most important creative work is creating a good impression.

The Prince of Wales is reported short of cash, which goes to show that a prince is just like the rest of us.

Scientists now declare the "hot dog" sandwich the richest in calories. Once again is the popular taste vindicated.

Some workers do not seem able to realize that the best course is to do at once what they will have to do some time.

Some of those folks who were delighted because "he kept us out of war" are disappointed because we are going to have peace.

The person who likes to sleep in the morning can at least point to the fate that overtook the early worm when the bird got busy.

The allies never neglect to mention gold marks when speaking of reparations. It would be easy for Germany to pay the other kind.

Great Britain is to build two unsinkable ships, according to report. The Average Man recalls that many "unsinkable ships" have been built and that most of them are decorating the ocean's floor.

It's Toasted

GOMPERS A MARXIAN CONVERT.

Washington, D. C. — "As a leader of spokesmen for laboring men in promotion of their rights and interests in many ways entirely proper, Mr. Gompers has been effective and deserves the commendation he has received," says the Republican Publicity Association. "But in recent years much of the good he has accomplished for labor has been counterbalanced by prejudices created as a result of policies he has pursued. He has undertaken to commit organized labor to policies which the laboring men of the country will not support for the reason that they recognize the fundamental evils involved — evils which menace the nation and which if fostered will react to the injury of labor itself."

"Mr. Gompers backed the police-men's strike in Boston — a strike which left the good people of that city — men, women and children, personal and property rights — open to violence at the hands of a mob. Because Governor Coolidge refused to reinstate the striking policemen, Mr. Gompers sided with those who strove to deny the Governor for re-election. The result was a demonstration that the better class of labor does not sympathize with the radicals in their ranks, for Coolidge was re-elected Governor by a record plurality. Moreover, the issue in Massachusetts caused the nomination of Coolidge for Vice President and his victory in a record breaking presidential election."

"Mr. Gompers gave his moral support to the infamous Adamson Act the passage of which was secured by a method commonly described as holding a pistol at the head of the nation and commanding the nation's Congress to pass the bill within a specified number of hours. The proponents of the Adamson Act won a temporary victory — a victory that was held as a triumph for organized labor — but the administration which complied with the demands of the Four Brotherhoods was retired from power in disgrace. Scarcely anywhere outside the ranks of the Four Brotherhoods can anyone be found to defend the methods adopted in placing the Adamson law on the Statute books."

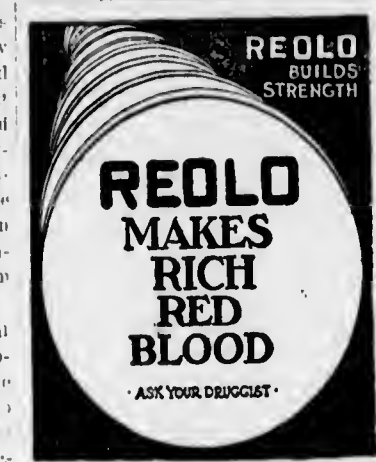

"Mr. Gompers is honorary president of the Plumb Plan League which proposes that the government shall issue bonds to raise money with which to buy the railroads and then turn them over to a body controlled by the employees to operate. Accepting as his proximately correct the valuation estimate of the Interstate Commerce Commission of $18,500,000,000, and assuming that at least the latest interest rate would be necessary on the bonds, this would mean an annual interest charge of nearly a billion dollars, still leaving the country to pay freight and passenger rates on the high scale of costs the railroad employees seek to maintain. This is a scheme that has no support among laborers outside the group of rail employees to be benefited thereby.

"Now Mr. Gompers allies himself with those who are seeking a 'general amnesty' for that class of criminals called 'political prisoners' — men who did all in their power short of risking their own lives, to bring about the defeat of America in the war. This is another scheme that will not have the support of labor, organized or unorganized. Labor in general performed its duty in the great war with a full measure of devotion. There were many instances, it is true, where, under the guidance of unpatriotic leaders, there was shirking on jobs of vital importance, but labor in general was guilty of no such treasonable acts. The millions of men who work with their hands furnished their full quota of loyal fighters at the front, and they have no sympathy with those who strove to bring defeat by obstruction and delay."

"In his latest move, Mr. Gompers will find himself out of touch with the true sentiment of the great body of American working men and wage earners, either organized or unorganized."

Names of the dead and injured could not be learned. The accident happened when the train backed on the trestle, which gave way. The train crew was plunged thirty-five feet to a rocky gully.

The scene of the accident is seven miles from here, where the Louisville & Nashville Railroad is grading for a new roadway.

New York Letter

by
Lucy Jeanne Price

New York:— Maybe we'll be singing "Hindustan" or even "Rhoda, Rhoda, Ran a Padogs," pretty soon. For Tin Pan Alley, that block in West 45th street, where the "hits of the season" are turned out en bloc, is strangely still. The song writers have gone on a strike. Three cents a copy and fifty per cent. on talking machine records, they want. So the publishers are going back into the files and the archives all ready to renew the popularity of the old standbys. Maybe we'll even get back to the "sweet simple things of a former generation" which critics of today love to recall—such things as "She's More to Be Pitted Than Censured" and "The Moth and the Flame," for instance!

"The most beautiful American girl at the Riviera" landed in New York again the other day. And a presidential candidate has a mild and gentle audience when he gets himself up to be inspected compared to the crowds that turned their critical eyes upon the youthful Miss Clair Booth when word got about as to who she was. The winter colony at the fashionable French resort voted Miss Booth her title three months ago, at the height of the season there. For one, I should say after seeing her that she deserved it.

Some people are afraid that immigrants "will not be sufficiently quick in grasping the ways of this country and its opportunities!" Let them know of Miss Antonia Duretto. She landed her last week, from Italy, was admitted, and decided to use some of her savings on a taxi. The chauffeur charged her $5 for a fifteen block ride, and within ONE HOUR from the time she had been admitted at Ellis Island, she had the case of the dishonest overcharge up before the court! There seems little doubt existent as to Miss Duretto's chances of getting along very well in a strange country.

Of course Washington market is pretty well known in the city, but I hadn't realized its pre-eminence until a woman told me the story of her buteher. She's been marketing with him quite a while and they always chat while she is selecting her roasts. The other day he remarked that she had a cold. "I got it at the unveiling of the Boliver statue," she explained. "Bolivar, who was he, anyhow," asked the butcher. "Well, he helped to emancipate a lot of South American just as Washington did for North America," she replied—rather vague, to be sure. "You mean Washington that was president?" questioned the market man in his pursuit of knowledge. One of the clerks joined in then. "Sure, you know who he was, boss.

The one they named the market after."

"The Love Chief" is the title of the new comedy which Edgar Selwyn has written for Leo Carillo's starring vehicle. It will be put on by the selwyns early in June.

Whatever one says or reads about "business depression" or that sort of thing during the winter just past, it certainly didn't show in opera receipts. And opera is generally classed as a luxury, too. The Metropolitan Opera, which just closed its New York season a few days ago, broke all records for attendance. While official figures are withheld, it was popularly reported and credited that the company's six months had been one-third more than last year, or a new top record of over $2,250,000.

One more watch, dog has added his name to the hero list. "Spot," who held himself responsible for the well-being of a Newark factory, gave warning of the fire there the other night, and then led the firemen into the blaze. When it was extinguished, his charred body was found.

Two Sisters Get Help

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for what it did for Them

Hagerstown, Md.—"I was overworked and my monthly periods stopped. My body was swollen and I often had pains so I had to lie down. I was treated by a physician, but he did not seem to help me at all. My sister had taken your medicine with great results so I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am able to work and feel like working. I have been recommending your medicine to my friends, and you are welcome to use my testimonial for I can never praise your medicine enough for what it has done for me."—RHODA E. CARBAUGH, R. R. 1, Hagerstown, Md.

Women will tax their powers of endurance to the limit before giving up, and it is then some womanly ailment develops and they have to give up entirely. When a woman suffers from such symptoms as irregularities, headaches, backaches, bearing-down pains, inflammation, nervousness and "the blues," it is well for her to profit by Mrs. Carbaugh's experience and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has restored multitudes of women suffering from just such ailments.

Uncle Ted's Bed-Time Stories.

Jack Wins Argument—Money Being Saved.

Yes, and all they have been doing is talk about it," said Johnny Jones, who was trying to get Jack in a corner on whether the new administration at Washington is saving money or not.

"That's all you know about it," replied Jack. "You are just like a lot of other people. You do a lot of talking but you don't read or listen to some one who knows to find out what is going on. Sure the Republicans have been doing a lot of talking about saving the people's money. Why shouldn't them? There has been enough of it wasted in the past eight years to sink a fleet of battleships. The only way you can get things started is to talk about them and get all the people interested. Unless you and your dad and everyone else is interested in seeing the government money saved it won't be saved."

"They are interested because they elected a real man for President and a Congress to help him," said Ruth who had been listening.

"At it again?" It was Uncle Ted who came into the play room. "I heard so much of what you kiddies seem to be differing about that I could not stay out."

"Please, Uncle Ted, you tell us about it so that Johnny will know I am right," Jack was feeling mighty happy that his Uncle had arrived. In Jack's estimation his uncle knew everything.

"I haven't much to tell you about that sort of thing today because I haven't kept in touch with it as closely as I should. You see I went to Hampton Roads to see the great Atlantic Fleet come home. That was a wonderful sight and I heard President Harding make a mighty fine talk on board the Battleship 'Pennsylvania' but, first of all, Johnny is right when he says the Republicans have been doing a lot of talking about saving government money and saving it. But that isn't all. They are DOING something, too, every day. President Harding long ago made up his own mind that extravagance and waste would have to stop. He has told Congress so. He has told his cabinet the same thing and he has told them in a way that they know he means what he is talking about. Every effort is being made to bring taxes down as much as possible. If the cost of running the government can be brought down then the taxes can be brought down, too. Every year for a long time it has been the habit of the cabinet members when they found that their department funds were running low to ask for what is known as a 'deficiency appropriation.'"

"What is that?" asked Ruth.

"It means this: O certain department, we will say, asks Congress for a certain amount of money on which to run for a year. They may get it all or not. The department goes ahead and spends more money than it is allowed, and has to go to Congress again in the same year for money to meet its debts. It is the same as a man living beyond his means. If I make $50 a week I certainly can't spend $75 a week for a very long time. First thing I know I'll have to borrow from somebody. I'm not as lucky as a government department, because I haven't any Congress to go to for more.

"President Harding has warned the members of his cabinet that the departments must live within the amount of money provided. To do otherwise, he says, is a 'dangerous tendency.' He warned them by a letter, part of which I will read you. Listen:—estimated now before Congress call for approximately $216,000,000 of deficiency appropriations, and—the estimated deficiencies will run very much beyond that sum. I do not know of any more DANGEROUS TENDENCY IN THE ADMINISTRATION OF GOVERNMENTAL DEPARTMENTS, and I am very sure that we can never fix ourselves firmly on a basis of economy until the departments are conducted within the provisions of Congress."

"I feel quite sure that all the cabinet officers agree with the President. I know the Senators in charge of appropriations agree. They are going to sift down every request for money and not let one penny more get away than is absolutely needed.

"You remember I told you about the new Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon. He is used to handling large sums of money and for that reason is more careful than a man who doesn't know its value. He is mighty strong for saving. In fact he is demanding economy and he will make it mighty hard for anyone who wants to try the old stunt of emptying the Treasury. Now I must go."

"Well, Johnny, what do think now?" asked Jack.

"You sure have got a peach of an uncle and I know he KNOWS what is right. I hark out." And Johnny did hark out.

NURSE TRAINING SCHOOLS IN GOVERNMENT HOSPITALS.

Owing to the great demand for nurses throughout the country and especially in Government hospitals, the U. S. Public Health Service has decided to open training schools in such of its hospitals as may be fitted for the work.

As a beginning schools will be opened in the hospital at Fox Hills, Staten Island, New York, because of its nearness to New York City, and at Fort McHenry, near Baltimore, because of the physical conditions and the personnel are all unusually well adapted to the work. Schools will be opened in other hospitals as conditions permit.

THE PATENT OX.

According to a bulletin just issued by the U. S. Public Health Service, a French investigator has discovered that the malaria mosquito prefers cattle to human being and will feed on them whenever she can, thus materially reducing the human malaria rate in several parts of France. He suggests fitting up stables as gigantic mosquito traps with cattle for bait. Here's a chance for the anti-vivisectionists and anti-vaccinationists to start a movement under the slogan: "Spare the ox: let the mosquito bite your own child."

Blind Typist Makes Record on President's Address

Blind Stenographer is Speedier on Typewriter—New York Lighthouse Hears the President.

New York.—When President Harding addressed the blind men and women at the New York Lighthouse for the Blind, 11 East Fifty-ninth street, the notes of his address were taken by a blind stenographer, Miss Grace E. Keator, and were transcribed by her on a typewriter in the Lighthouse office.

Miss Keator has a record of ninety words a minute—better, it is said, than that of the majority of sighted stenographers. She takes dictation on a stenotype machine, and with her fingers reads the abbreviated dotted characters which use a contraction of the reading type used by the blind, and then transcribes them on her typewriter. Miss Keator is the official stenographer of the New York Lighthouse, and the office work is heavy in that organization which handles 3,529 cases of the blind in one year.

All of Miss Keator's business letters are written by her on a regular typewriter, but for personal correspondence she uses the special writing frame devised for the blind. This instrument consists of two metal blades of equal size, usually no more than one foot long, hinged together at one end. In one blade there are cut two or more rows of cells of the required point space, and in the other is a grooved bed, or a base with writing pits drilled into it, so that one blade fits over the other. Between these blades, the paper is inserted. The blade with the cell openings is placed above, and into it are impressed, with the aid of small pointed styli, dots in the desired number and position.

Type for the blind has never been standardized. There are three kinds in use today. New York point, American Braille, and English Braille, grade 1, and the last is becoming the standardized type for the blind in this country. Miss Keator is proficient in the use of these three types. Miss Keator lost her sight at the end of her High School course. Immediately she set about to prepare herself, once more, to be self-supporting. She attended an institution for the instruction of the blind, and there she became trained as a switchboard operator, a pianist, and a secretary.

As the President and Mrs. Harding were leaving the New York Lighthouse, after their brief call there, the President stopped at the desk of Miss Keator, shook hands with her, and then dictated this message of greeting to the pupils and workers at the Lighthouse: "Do let me express my most sympathetic and cheering greetings to those of the Lighthouse, and wish them and all who seek to do for them the greatest success in adding to the light of happiness in the world."

President and Mrs. Harding's visit to the New York Lighthouse was their second expression of interest, within a week, in the $2,000,000 campaign now being carried on by the Committee for Lighthouses for the Blind, from its headquarters at 111 East Fifty-ninth street. President Harding has accepted the Honorary Chairmanship and Secretary Mellon has accepted the Honorary Treasurership of the Committee. Contributions should be sent to Lewis L. Clarke, Treas., at 111 E. Fifty-ninth street, New York City.

"Earthbound," The Big Feature Here
Thursday Is a Sermon to Every Man—Highly Praise by the Public.

"No God, no sin, no future life. Nothing but the survival of the fittest, and every man for himself."

That was the creed that two intimate friends, Jim Rittenshaw and Dick Desborough, subscribed to in their college days. To him themselves to it more firmly they wrote it out in contract form and signed their names to it. But when they sought to enlist another friend, Harvey Breck, he refused, and over his signature wrote upon the fateful page "All tomorrow." But Dick and Jim lived by their ruthless creed and achieved wealth and success—all the material comforts and luxuries that life can offer.

Then came the day when Dick Desborough and Jim Rittenshaw's wife, Daisy, became enamored of each other. By the creed, Dick ignored the claims of his own wife and his little daughter upon him and Rittenshaw, too, should have been willing to surrender to the victor without protest. But when Jim learned of the duplicity of his wife and best friend he fled in the dangerous creed was swept away in an overpowering desire for revenge. To prevent Dick's elopement with his wife, Jim, armed with a pistol, sets out to kill his friend at the club where he knows Dick has an appointment.

The two men meet on the broad stairway of the club. Nonaheantily, Dick walks half way up the stairway and smiles at Jim with extended hand. Jim's answer is a shot that brings instant death and Dick's body falls backward down the stairs. As it comes to rest on the floor below the spiritual body of the dead man becomes visible and takes its place beside Jim on the stairs.

Dick's spirit, instead of being free to move forward, finds itself earthbound and must remain thus until he has atoned for his sin and has worked out his problems on earth. From then on the spirit of Dick tries valiantly to communicate with his broken-hearted wife, with Jim Rittenshaw, who, because he does not wish to incriminate his wife has refused to make a defense against the murder charge brought against him, and with Daisy Rittenshaw, who alone can save Jim by confessing her guilt. But the work is slow and at times almost hopeless.

The first to see the spirit of Dick is his little daughter, next Harvey Breck, becomes conscious of Dick's presence at the club one day and makes himself ridiculous in the eyes of the other members by speaking to the spirit. Later Dick appears to Dr. Roger Galloway in the church of which he is rector. Dr. Galloway speaks to Dick and tells him that he must straighten out the trouble he has caused before he can go on. By abandoning his sin the spirit of Dick is made better fitted for the task before him and finally succeeds in influencing the actions of those with whom he associated in life so that Daisy is moved to make a voluntary confession before the jury thereby saving Jim's life. But Dick is still earthbound and cannot obtain his release until he wins the forgiveness of his wife. She is the last to see him in the spirit, but when finally she does give him her whole-hearted forgiveness and instantly Dick is set free to progress in the spirit world and the last that is seen of him is as he is walking onward toward a new and higher goal.

New York City. — Immigration, regulation of combinations, open shop, industrial betterment, the sales tax, the age of electricity in industry, the legislative outlook, financing the trade of the world, the commerce of the world and the American merchant marine are some of the subjects that will be discussed very fully at the forthcoming annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel here on May 16, 17 and 18.

Already an excellent grouping of speakers has been provided for the regular sessions and the annual banquet which will be held on the night of Wednesday, May 18. Aside from this there will be a Conference of Ambassadors and Ministers on World Trade, which will occupy three sessions of the convention and be addressed by various ambassadors and ministers now representing their nations at Washington and conclude with a summing up from the American viewpoint by three or four of the men most eminently fitted for such discussions.

Approximately thirty ambassadors and ministers have sent written formal acceptances to attend the convention and the conference and it is now confidently believed this will be one of the finest conventions ever held in New York City and that there will be more than 2,000 manufacturers from all over the country at the various sessions. Also there will be a large group of consuls general and other representatives of foreign nations who will be in attendance to participate in the discussions of a Trade Advisory Section, which will be maintained so manufacturers may obtain precise information on any country that is wanted. In addition there will be at these advisory sessions, trade advisers from the State Department and the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce, just recently returned from posts abroad, to give counsel on the latest information that they have brought back with them.
